Where Heaven Is.
 Here is a Sam Jones, story which ought to be true whether it is or not: The question "Where is heaven?" was put to Sam Jones by one of his wealthy church members in Georgia whose cotton crop yielded him some $20,000 the last year. "I'll tell you where heaven is," said Mr. Jones, "if you go down to the village and buy $50 worth of groceries, put them in a wagon and take them to that poor widow on the hillside who has three of her children sick. She is poor and is a member of the church. Take with you a nurse and some one to cook their meals. When you get there read the twenty-third Psalm and kneel by her side and pray. Then you will find out where heaven is."
 Next day as the evangelist was walking through the village he met the same wealthy planter, his face beaming with joy. He spoke after this manner. "Mr. Jones I've found out where heaven is. I went as you directed me. We took up the wagon load of groceries and the poor widow was completely overcome with joy. She could not express her thankfulness. As I read to her the twenty-third Psalm my heart was filled with thankfulness to God and when I prayed the angel came and I thought I was nearer to heaven than I have ever been in my life. I left the nurse and cook in her humble dwelling and promised her she should never suffer so long as I could help her."

He Sued Himself.
 A Washington attorney is rather noted for the facility with which he forgets financial obligations, says the Star. He has owed a certain grocer $8 for a year or two. The other day the merchant concluded to try a new course with him. Meeting him in his store he said:
 "Judge, I have a customer who owes me a small bill and has owed it for a long time. He makes plenty of money but won't pay. What would you do?"
 "I'd sue him," said the lawyer, emphatically.
 "Well, I will put the account in your hands," and the merchant presented a statement of the account against himself.

 "All right, I will attend to it," said the disciple of Blackstone.
 A few days later the merchant received the following note from the lawyer:
 "In case of _____, against _____, I took judgment for full amount of your claim. Execution was issued and returned 'no property found.' My fee for obtaining judgment is $10, for which amount please send check. Will be glad to serve you in any other matters in which you need an attorney."
